

Fai Dee is a long-established international business, highly regarded in the gem and jewellery community.

We comply with all applicable legal requirements, including international trade sanctions.

Fai Dee does not now, nor has it ever, sourced rubies in violation of any sanctions against Myanmar.

Rubies have been mined, in what today is Myanmar, for more than 800 years, and there is a large supply of quality antique stones in the hands of trusted sources outside of Myanmar.

Fai Dee complies with all applicable sanctions, and only purchases rubies from trusted sources, many of which have, like Fai Dee, been engaged in this trade for several generations.

Fai Dee has no association whatsoever with Myanmar's military, nor do we support the injustices that have been taking place.

Fai Dee stands with the people of Myanmar and is not sourcing rubies from any mines or enterprises connected to the Myanmar military regime.

Nor did we do so during the period when there were no sanctions, between 2016 and 2021.
